Success converting into Achievement

Manish Dudhagara (@Man)

English Blogger and Writer, Rajkot, India

According to a person`s attitude, background, personality everybody thinks different about what is success. For some people who have done beginning from zero, if they get 25 to 30 thousand rupees per month and possess own a house of themselves they believe that they are successful in their lives. Where as a person doesn`t satisfy in these things just, he or she doesn`t believe that he or she has got success.

The poor man from his childhood did a lot of struggle, he saw many sad days in his life. He believes success in his life if he purchased a house of his own possessiveness and his five necessities he accomplishes like food, clothing, shelter, his children`s education and safety. He also makes his children`s hobbies complete according to his family`s income. Then, he believes that he is successful in life. If we crane into such people`s lives , we can`t refuse that he didn`t get success because it his belief and he created from zero this everything.

I think if you can do what you want in your life most of the times, you are a successful person. Once again listen carefully most of the times I had used those words because we can`t say every time you can do what you want. I think it is not possible for anybody in this world. The reason for that matter is every time situations, circumstances don`t support everybody. May be in life sometimes we want something and we do struggle a lot, we don`t even be tired, we apply all the efforts in different way to get it. Though we can`t get it because God has some different plan for you and God wants to give you something extra more precious. So, we should not expect that every time we can get what we want. Just now I have talked about a poor man whose children have got government job by getting education and struggling. The poor man is definitely a successful person.

Many people who don't understand the difference between success and achievement, they consider that both are the same.

So, ``Success is what you want something in your life and you get it by your hard work.``

But achievement is totally different from this. Before we talk about achievement let me clarify that everyone likes all these words in his or her life but a few like to do enough struggle for it. When we listen, read, know about celebrities of different fields, they believe absolutely unique about success from us. No doubt there is vast or huge difference in their attitudes because they don't satisfy with their small success and get something huge and they call it success. I have observed in celebrities that they have a very consistent habit of getting success in their lives so I can say that success is a habit or success is made by all the good habits of a person.

Achievement is that kind of success which needs tremendous consistency, struggle and excellence in xyz field. When Sherpa Tenzing, Arunima Sinha, Bachendri Pal reach on the Mt. Everest which is the highest peak of the world, the height of 8848 meters. That is called achievement. Why just that is called his or her achievement as it is the top of the world which can't be won by other mountaineers. It is possible that a mountaineer did more struggle than the mountaineer who reaches on the Mt. Everest. Though Everest is Everest, it absorbs every drop of a person's energy in both way physically and mentally.

Let`s take one more illustration of sports. If any cricket team Australia, West Indies or India wins world cup of One Day International or twenty 20 that is success. If our Indian hockey team gets gold medal in Olympics that is considered achievement! Why is that so? Look at their competitors or rivals. In world cups there are 15 teams maximum who play cricket in the world. In those main strong teams are only 10 who can give tough competition each other or one another. In comparison in Olympic 175 countries of the world play different events the best or better than the best compete with one another. So our hockey team of India is completely measured because all the teams who are the best or better than the best in the world give tough competitions and if Indian hockey team defeats one by one every team in Olympics and gets gold medal, you can tell that our team is excellent all over the world in hockey. So that`s why I call it achievement.

See and understand here I have talked about achievement and naturally I have talked about excellence in achievement.

So, ``Achievement is mixture of success and excellence``.
